TEMPE, Ariz. – Arizona Attorney General candidate Felecia Rotellini this week received the endorsement of former Tempe mayor and veteran community advocate Neil Giuliano.

After meeting with Rotellini last month and pledging his support, Giuliano released his endorsement via Facebook on Monday. “I watched the debates, read the candidates websites and information, and have decided to help and vote for Felecia Rotellini for Attorney General,” Giuliano wrote. “Her background as a professional prosecutor is most compelling -- what we truly need in that role for our state -- and she can win in November.”

This is yet another top-level endorsement for Rotellini, a veteran prosecutor who has dedicated her career to fighting for Arizona families and seniors. She is being supported by Gov. Rose Mofford, business leader and former state Democratic Party Chairman Jim Pederson, and the Professional Fire Fighters of Arizona.
